Oslo – Bergen

DURATION: 30 H

In the work of artist Guillem Nadal, nature takes center stage. "My approach is very organic," he says. "I look at what's around me—the landscapes, textures and natural materials—and integrate these elements into my work." The canvases, with their gray-black flowing lines, are reminiscent of rippling water. Sometimes, the oil paint is laid on so thickly that it becomes claylike, as if taken from the soil of the earth.

Nadal lives and works on the outskirts of Son Servera, a small village on his native island of Mallorca. A mosaic of wild olive groves, terraced orchards and stuff.
